Technology

At the door personal computer skills are put on hold as this Trailblazer aims to help those who establish policy to develop a vision for the role of technology in a world class education.

The Obama administration has launched a technology initiative to stretch broadband into rural areas and that overcomes a major problem facing Louisiana. In addition, there are two parts of the stimulus program that make cash available for technology.

Students are being recognized for their technology appetites and accomplishments. From virtual classrooms to classroom practices that capitalize on student competitiveness and collaboration instincts that directly involve classes in exciting new ways, technology is bridging the gap between classrooms of the 1950s and the 21st Century.

Learn from a panel of outside experts what the future holds in store for your district.

Become a part of the “Mission Impossible” response by accepting the challenge to become trailblazers who are ready to reach out to a challenging future.
